PROTECTION—D. C. Marley and T. H. Deal, while rambling through the country Monday afternoon, saw a snake in the road in front of the John D. H. Marley home. They were trying to think that he had a little pistol tucked away somewhere in his car to protect himself in case of emergency. Mr. Marley found the snake and was about to shoot the reptile. After snapping the pistol five or six times, the snake disappeared. Mr. Deal advised Mr. Marley to discard this pistol, as it might excite somebody some time and hurt him or somebody or something.

GOES ON FOREVER—Automobiles may come and cars may go, but it would seem as though General Blackman's trusty Ford will go on forever. Mr. Blackman says they measured six feet in length and was five or six inches through at the largest point. It has 12 ratings and a better. Mr. Deal advised Mr. Marley to discard this pistol, as it might excite somebody some time and hurt him or somebody or something.

FIRST BALE—The honor of giving the first bale of cotton in Elba from the 1937 crop goes to C. D. Dorsey farm, in charge of Hugh Gannon. The cotton was brought in and ginned at the Montgomery factory. The bale weighed 470 pounds and was sold for 17c a pound. It is reported that the Dorsey farm has 120 acres of unusually fine cotton.

TRAVELLED FAST—Joe Bricker, Dan Prescott, Lester Brown, Douglass Rader and Bancroft Cooper returned the first day of a five-day trip to Miami and other Florida points. They went down the East Coast to Miami and returned via the Tamiami Trail and the West Coast. They report a fine trip and two many interesting things to mention. They say they were too afraid they would miss something so afraid they would not stay long in any one place, but kept moving.

BACK HOME—Dan Prescott returned home Monday afternoon from a several-months sojourn in Cuba. He is now in Elba, Fla. He reports a fine trip and two many interesting things to mention. They say they were too afraid they would miss something so afraid they would not stay long in any one place, but kept moving.

ORGANIZATION TAKES STAND ON PROBLEMS

AUBURN, Ala.—A resolution endorsing the 1937 AAA bill with "a" in it was unanimously passed by voting delegates of the Alabama Farm Bureau Federation in annual session here, August 4-5. They also passed resolutions asking for state legislation to prohibit charges of more than 6 per cent interest per annum, providing for study by farm bureau of taxes in Alabama and requesting congress to regulate value of money and to give the dollar a constant purchasing and debt-paying power.

The delegates also passed a resolution on rural electrification stating that the Alabama Farm Bureau Federation shall work with the TVA, Alabama Power Company, Municipal Power Company, and any other company that can furnish service at the most economical cost consistent with good business.

An expanded livestock program in the state was asked for by the delegates as they authorized the farm bureau officers to protect the interests of the livestock raisers and producers at all times. "We wholeheartedly endorse the outside county livestock program," said Dr. L. N. Duncan, president, P. O. Davis, director, and Dean M. J. Pugh, director, and pledge their 100 per cent cooperation in the program. Mrs. W. V. Williams, said the resolutions after endorsing the "outstanding work being done by all divisions of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, including the college, the Extension Service and Experiment Station."

Mrs. J. J. Farris has returned home from Panama City, Fla., where she has been visiting her children. Mrs. L. A. Hufschinger and children returned from their trip to a visit.

PRICES ARE STILL RISING

Prices of everything are going up. That is true not only in America but all over the world. France has followed England and America, not long ago, in depreciating its currency and abolishing the gold standard in internal transactions. Now Japan has followed suit, and the dollar is being depreciated by the yen in international markets.

Once this process is carried to its logical end, the value of the dollar will be pegged at the nations of the world are carried on the same equality of monetary value as they were before the depreciation of currencies began. The difference will be that all commodities whose prices are fixed in world markets, such as wheat and cotton, will be pegged at permanently higher prices in terms of each nation's domestic or paper currency.

That will work to the advantage of the producer of world commodities, but that it will benefit consumers proportionately seems to be doubtful, unless wages and interest rates are also increased. Dollars will benefit, since the dollar value of old debts remains unchanged, but the commodity value of the dollar goes down as prices go up. The dollar of wheat will give more than the dollar of cotton, or three bushels before the price rise began. But creditors still suffer, for their new dollars are worth far less than the dollars they lent.

Meanwhile, until the readjustment is complete, we all have to pay a larger proportion of our Alabama Polytechnic Institute, including the college, the Extension Service and Experiment Station.

Mrs. J. J. Farris has returned home from Panama City, Fla., where she has been visiting her children. Mrs. L. A. Hufschinger and children returned from their trip to a visit.
